Celebritude

I'm sure celebritude isn't a real word, because as I type is there is a squiggly red line underneath it. So let me supply you a definition for what I mean. Celebritude is the status one achieves by moving from obscurity to notoriety by virtue of indiscretion, bad behavior, or criminal action.

Celebritude should not be confused with either heroism or fame. Heroism evokes images of bravery or sacrifice for the sake of others. For instance, a mother who runs into a burning building to save her child or a passerby who renders first aid to an accident victim and saves his life is a hero. Fame is a notch below heroism, because the achievement in question may have nothing to do with courage or skill. Some people are famous simply because they were born to wealthy families such as the Rockefellers or Hiltons.

And let's not confuse celebritude with celebrity. People in the public eye as newscasters, musicians, or athletes may be celebrities by virtue of sheer visibility. They may be more blessed than heroic, more photogenic than talented.

"Celebritude" is the flashy phenomenon of our time. Someone is caught in a web of activity that is legally or morally suspect and turns his or her status into a way to "cash in" on a gullible public that has what appears to be an insatiable appetite for gossip and juicy scandal. More than that, people actually contrive shocking events and indecencies to get on camera.

- Bruce (yes, Bruce) Jenner cashes in on
- Anything to do with the Kardashians
- An outspoken sports star calls out another athlete by name

Then there are those who are desperate to make television's so-called reality shows. Forget honor and courage. Don't worry about positive achievements. Scrap modesty and class. Just get me on that island! Being outrageous is a quicker route to notoriety and fortune than disciplined achievement in things that really matter.

Unless and until society quits rewarding vain and stubborn adults with absurd celebritude, kids will continue getting the message that what we call "virtue" is archaic and just not worth the trouble.

A Deliberate People: Seek God Through Service Matthew 20:25-28

"Seek God Through _____."

1. Hebrews 11:6
2. Lamentations 3:25
3. Luke 11:9-10

Is it worth the cost? 1 Timothy 4:7-10

"Service" as a _____:

1. Matthew 20:25-28

Reasons Jesus came to earth:

1. First, He came to _____.
2. Second, He came to _____.
  - A. John 13:3-5, 12-16
  - B. 1 Peter 4:10; Galatians 5:13

How do we go about serving one another?

1. The most important thing about how we serve is the _____ of our heart.

Questions to help you discern what's in your own heart:

1. How do you respond when no one _____ what you've done?
2. How do you react when others take your service for _____?
3. How do you feel when someone _____ something you did for them?
4. What if the service you're being asked to perform is something _____?

Practical principles for serving:

1. Be _____ to serve on the spur of the moment.
2. Look for _____ to serve.
3. Don't be too _____ about how you serve.
4. Be willing to serve by doing the _____.

The key to a deep knowledge of Christ, and a deep experience with God, is to do the things that Christ did.
