Whatever You Do, Work At It With All Your Heart,
As Working For The Lord, Not For Men

Live To Be Missed

Imagine the surprise of the construction workers who were renovating a building in the historic section of Natchez, Mississippi a few years ago. As they were closing out the work week they began dismantling the rickety and unstable old chimney. Then they would plan their approach to repairing it next week — and shut down for the weekend. Not so!

Everybody stayed late that day, for they found a fully-clothed skeleton wedged inside. It wasn't hard to figure out that the remains were those of a petty criminal who had been last heard from in 1985. His wallet was in his pocket.

The chimney was that of an antebellum home in Natchez. The Sheriff said there had been a gift shop in the house back then. "His criminal record shows he was a burglar," stated the Sheriff, "so the suspicion is that he was crawling down the chimney to burglarize the business at that period of time, became lodged, and died." (Now stop snickering! I'm not making this up.) Nobody suspects foul play. The case has been closed on Calvin Wilson, age 27.

When I heard the story, I wondered the same things you're wondering. Why did no one notice a decomposing body? Speculation is that breezes off a nearby river kept people from discovering it. Why didn't he yell? Perhaps he slipped and suffered a fatal blow to his head when he entered the chimney. Then the biggest question of all: Why didn't someone miss him, search for him, and report his absence to authorities in 1985?

Mr. Wilson's story really isn't all that unusual. Every once in a while people find a dead person in a house or apartment by the utility company. Payment was overdue. Notices had been sent. Finally someone went to shut off the gas or electricity — and discovered a decomposing body. But sixteen years later? Nobody knows you're gone? What a sad commentary on a human life.

It isn't that one has to be famous to live a worthwhile life. But you do have to learn the importance of people, connect with them, and really care about them. At work, in your community, with your church, certainly in your family — don't you want somebody to miss you when you aren't there anymore?

God didn't create us for isolation but for community. And lives are not well-lived by selfishness and detachment. To be missed for your absence someday, you need to be making a difference in somebody's life today.

John 1:40-42

Laurence J. Peter developed a maxim: "The PETER Principle."

1. Promoted to a point of INCOMPETENCE.

The world evaluates people based on this kind of principle.

1. God places value on what lies within.
2. (I.E. Samuel)

John 1:40-42

Notes about Simon:

He was a fulfillment of the principle named after him. But he changed.

1. Sermon at PENTECOST
2. HEALING and PREACHING in the temple, proclaiming the death, burial and resurrection.
3. Appearance before the SANHEDRIN
4. "You must obey GOD rather than MAN."

Something had apparently happened to Peter. But what?

He used to think, "I can do all things."

The change happened started saying: "I can do all things... but not by MYSELF."
